

2014 CAPTG Workshop

*Monday, September 15, 2014
Sheraton Wall Centre, Vancouver, British Columbia*

“State-of-the-Practice for Airfield Pavement Materials and Specifications”

As airport pavement construction and maintenance budgets continue to decline, the importance of quality materials and workmanship is greater than ever before. With that in mind, this year’s workshop will focus on building a quality, long-lasting airfield pavement from the ground up. Presentations will discuss the key components of quality in subgrade soil preparation, aggregate selection and compaction, and asphalt and concrete materials and mix designs.

The workshop will also do an extensive review of current airfield pavement specifications in an effort to provide attendees with a clear understanding of options for their own paving projects. In addition, this review will discuss new advances in pavement technology and their impact on specifications and provide guidance on what information is critical to a good specification.
